FUND MANAGER'S COMMENTARY

For the month of April 2018, World Winners returned +1.2% net vs +2.8% for its benchmark, the MSCI World (€). Major market indices are digesting well the looming commercial and geopolitical tensions, thanks to the positive micro-economic results for the first quarter of 2018.

This quarter's earning period has been generally satisfactory for World Winners. As you may already know, for reasons such as lack of visibility/conviction, we are not exposed to the energy sector, which saw a +10.2% run over the last month, following the Brent rally to 75$/barrel, a level last reached in November 2014.

Sanctions imposed by Donald trump against Russia have penalized Russian equities like Magnit (food distribution, 8 bn€ market cap, Russia) and Yandex (media, 9 bn€ market cap, Russia), even though their respective results and perspectives were encouraging, and their respective valuations look attractive to us given their growth prospects. If their main shareholders /top managers are not concerned by the sanctions, the 10% decrease in the Russian Rouble partly explains the drop in the share price, making them cheaper for non-fundamental reasons.

On another note, World Winners suffered on the month following Tarkett's earning results (construction materials, 1.5 bn€ market cap, France), which was disappointing due to the price hike of petroleum derivatives (main cost item for the group's flooring products) and a negative FX effect. We expect the share price to rise up again following price hikes that are currently being passed-on to the customers, as well as cost reduction initiatives undertaken by the group.

As for the good news, Li Ning (sport goods, 2 bn€ market cap, China) fared well following its distribution network restructuring program. The company saw +15% increase in sales for the first quarter of 2018. The Chinese market for sporting goods looks promising, especially with an increased interest coming from the young Chinese population, which shows pride towards the few major Chinese brands.

Finding leader companies at attractive prices, which are overlooked by the general market, has been our specialty for more than 20 years. We see this minor market correction at the beginning of FY 2018 as an attractive entry point for medium-term investors.
