FUND MANAGER'S COMMENTARY

For the month of January 2018, World Winners' performance was +2% vs +3.6% for its benchmark, the MSCI World ACWI index (€). This underperformance is explained by a profit taking effect on some of our investments: The American retailer L Brands being a case in point.

We initiated our position in L Brands back in August 2017 (after the stock had lost 45% in the first eight months of the year) amidst doubts regarding the future of the brick and mortar retail model, which is losing ground against the more nimble, e-commerce one. Another worrisome phenomenon is that a single player, Amazon, with its nearly $200 billion in US revenue generated in 2017 (estimated +32%), already controls nearly 44% of all US on-line sales (compared with 38% in 2016). L-Brands, which is less affected by the e-commerce wave than other physical retailers, continued to produce/distribute its own products (being Victoria's Secret and BBW), boasted sales of $12.5 billion and generated $900 million in net income for 2017. After being penalized for non-fundamental reasons over the first eight months of the year, the stock price ended-up increasing by ~45% in the fourth quarter of 2017, benefiting from a climate of improving apparel sales in the United States, especially during the months of October and November.

On the other hand, L Brands' December sales were disappointing. On the "news", talking about a single month of sales (!), with regards to a single division of the group, the stock price dropped nearly 20% on the day. This volatility, resulting from the nervousness of investors, is a great source of opportunity for us.

Our passion is to continuously sharpen our understanding of all the companies in our limited investment universe, in order to react subtly to major events that never fail to surprise us in today's constantly changing world.

Investing one's wealth in quality companies at discounted prices remains a sound way to compound returns over the long run.
